Washington, March 19.—The entire Adamson act was today held constitutional by the United States supreme court. The court's decision was five to four, with Justices Pitney, Day, Van Devanter and Reynolds dissenting. The majority opinion, written by Justice McKenna, held that the Adamson act, which limits the hours of railroad employees to eight per day, is constitutional. The dissenting opinion, written by Justice Hook, held that the act is unconstitutional. The case arose from a suit brought by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen against the United States, seeking to have the Adamson act declared unconstitutional. The Supreme Court's decision is a significant victory for the federal government in its effort to maintain the eight-hour law during the war.

NEW DAY IS DAWNING FOR RUSSIAN PEOPLE

LIEUT. SWARTZKOPENSKY DESCRIBES CONDITIONS IN AN ADDRESS AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

PREDICTED BY TOLSTOY

Nation's Greatest Philosopher and Writer Foresaw Present World Conflict and Overthrow of Monarchies.

Declaring that he spoke in behalf of the Russian people oppressed through three hundred and forty years of military despotism, Lieutenant Swartzkopfsky, escaped exile from Siberia and former bodyguard of the czar, declared that the present revolution brought the dawning of a new day to his native land. He addressed a large audience Sunday evening at the First Baptist church.

He sincerely hoped that his country was through with despotic tyranny forever, but that he feared the monarch and the political rulers who had no longer dominated affairs would not so easily lay down the power which they had so long held. When the day of the republic dawned, the speaker said, his work here would be done and he would go back to his former home. Not but what he loved America and its government, he said. He had commenced to take out his naturalization papers with the intention of remaining in the United States, after a series of wanderings through Germany, England, Egypt and many other countries. America was the land of his choice, and only the need of his country and the opportunity to help his people would induce him to return to Russia. The speaker gave his ideas of the status of the Jews in Russia, where he showed they were persecuted on every hand in obedience to the tenets of the Greek church, which taught that a Jew had no right to live. As the Jews were always well educated in the synagogue, they became in the main successful business men. But the jealousy of their competitors in business and the religious fanaticism of the church made their life a hard one and they were beaten, robbed and murdered without any consequences by the common people of Russia. There was no fear of punishment in killing a Jew, or even in common murder; it was only when a soldier or priest was injured that banishment in Siberia or capital punishment was imminent, as the military or religious order represented the government. The czar is the head of the church and the government; the state and the church are one. This gives the tremendous power which has so long kept Russia in a state of servitude.

The speaker then gave a resume of the life of Tolstoy, born to a life of culture, affluence and ease; an officer in the Crimean war and later a judge. But all of a sudden "he came to himself," and said: "I am through with the folly and glitter of life; I am for humanity." Then he commenced to write his powerful books which had been of so much service to his people and to the world. The church tried to stop him; the czar even tried to eliminate him entirely and his good work went on.

His famous prophecy of the world wide war, now waging, was given to the people in the form of a dream. He predicted the massacre of the Jews; the entrance of all the European nations in the conflict; and proclaimed the fact that the people would rise up and "throw away their monarchies." Tolstoy even named the date of 1914 as the beginning of this terrible struggle.

The speaker said that one of the results of the present revolution would be the setting free of political prisoners and the return of the five million exiles now held in Siberia for political reasons to their own homes. Lieutenant Swartzkopfsky, who much of his life has been spent in the foreign prisons, but that only helps to make his utterances more fascinating. As he says, "I am no picnic," and he shows some degree of the terrible effects of his years of exile and dungeon life upon his health and strength.

The musical numbers of the evening were given by the choir, assisted by Mrs. M. R. Manley who sang most of the songs. The solo by MacDermid, "Rise, Shine," very appropriate scripture and devotional service was rendered by the pastor, Reverend Raymond G. Brown.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. Windy, fresh to strong southwest winds.

THE HIGHWAYS.

Long before the days of railroads the highways were the means of travel between different communities. Our early history tells us that aside from the regular government roads there were many turnpikes, constructed by private capital, for which a charge was made to those who wished to journey on them. Toll roads were common before the days of the steam engine, while the latter was experimenting with his wonderful engine that was to revolutionize modern travel.

Our ancestors crossed the mountains that divided the eastern coast states from the western wilderness, by way of the turnpike, or came down the Ohio in flat boats, or around the lakes from Buffalo after the famous Erie canal was completed across New York state. It took Governor Clinton of New York a long time to make the Dutch farmers understand he could make water run uphill, but when he did they furnished the west began.

The steam came the electric lines, and later the automobile. All play their part, but just the same, the old-time country road is an asset to any community, and dollars and cents to every business man located in a city. Good roads lead to or depart from the automobile, and the ownership of these machines of travel is not confined to the cities, but to the rural districts as well, and the question of roads is now an important problem.

As in the days of the early part of the eighteenth century, before steam or electricity were known, the national government was taking up the question of road construction and aiding the states of the federation in constructing them by material financial contributions. The states are to respond in part, and the counties through which these highways are to pass must pay their share. It is a problem to be carefully considered and the present legislature has deliberated long and carefully on the subject.

Senator Lawrence Cunningham of Deloit is chairman of the joint legislative committee that has in charge the measure that will create a system of road building that is fair to revolutionize the present system and bring about a new regime in road building throughout the state. Rock county is down on the list for material improvements that amounts up to the thousands, and will mean a permanent highway for years to come. A thoroughfare by which crops could be moved, grains transported, farmers drive their produce to the nearest market, and tourists enjoy the journey through Badgerland.

Senator Cunningham has worked faithfully on this measure and it is to be a monument to his efforts in the state senate as the representative of the district that comprises Rock and Walworth counties. His appointment as chairman of the joint committee is an honor in itself, and the courage and work he has put into the compilation of the law proposed shows the interest he has for the general welfare of his senatorial district and the state at large.

TIME AND TIDE.

Recently the time and the tide did wait for the "Car of All Russia" and his abdication was somewhat hurried. That the example set by the "tsar" class, until a few decades ago, sons of Russia, always supposed to be the most powerful of all monarchs, in rising against their rulers and in what might be termed a "bloodless" revolution, completely changing the face of the map of Europe is an example that thinking Germans and Austrians and residents of other war-ridden European countries may seek to emulate. If they do then the war will cease.

Time and tide waits for no man. "The place in the sun" is only occupied by the family cat when the neighbor's dog is not in evidence. "Me and God" may be a theory, but it is not a realization. The United States faces a situation that is most difficult, but the Russian dilemma is not abrogated any of the possibilities of his country being called into conflict to defend its own rights and integrity.

Until six o'clock tonight—central time—was the period of the peace treaty signed between the railroad leaders and the brotherhood heads. Then a strike was to be declared. Public sentiment was against the strike. Public opinion was against the strike. The thought that a man who sought personal gain can tie up the business of his whole nation and control its foreign policy and means of protecting itself. If the unions of the various railway brotherhoods had shown the same true spirit of patriotism as did the railway managers in granting the demands they would not have chosen this inopportune time to enforce their demands. They would have waited.

Time and tide wait for no man and it would appear that the unions had been caught by the undertow and missed a royal opportunity of showing their loyalty to the government, the advantage now being with the railroads. That the leaders do not represent the workers in entirety, is known, but still they were vested with authority and act for them, and the public would have suffered. The outcome of the strike talk does not fill the average citizen with respect for the men who would—if they could—have thrown this country into a panic condition as bad as that of Russia, if not worse.

the head-on around home and investigate the possibility of a few weeks, or a few days, at some up-river cottage when the weather becomes warm. The Rock river and its bluffs have been favorably compared to the Hudson river by persons who have seen both, and certainly it is safer and more economical.

Apparently the question of voting on the town of Janesville and the town of Rock has not been seriously considered. South Janesville is located in the town of Rock, and there are numerous resorts in the town of Janesville that would bear inspection.

HOUSES FOR WORKING PEOPLE.

One of the big problems of modern high cost living is the providing of comfortable homes for working people. Many of the big industries have had to take this up. They find that if mechanics can't find comfortable homes they won't live and work in a place.

The Youngstown, Ohio, Sheet and Tube company is the latest to try this out, announcing a plan for building a million dollars' worth of small homes for operatives. In many places the impossibility of finding small and comfortable homes for rent prevents communities from growing. Yet at present prices of building materials and labor, the capitalist says there is no money in erecting houses.

No doubt farmers would find it easier to get help if they would provide little homes to rent to their laborers. Many farmers who have made money in the present scale of prices would like to better invest their money in this way near home, than to buy securities of property located many miles away about which they know nothing.

Probably the building of houses, like other things, will have to be done on a bigger scale. Where a builder undertakes one house at a time, the cost mounts up. If he can put up a group at a time, the proportionate cost of each must be decreased. Orders for a big lot of materials somewhat uniform in character should secure lower prices. There should be a reduction in the relative costs of supervision.

The worst of building a lot of houses at a time is that they give a neighborhood an air of dead uniformity. Builders will find that their houses will rent better and sell better, if given some individuality and artistic character. A little more money paid to an architect to make houses look like comfortable and pretty homes, means a easier sale.

Now is the time to fit out those bird houses for their summer occupants. They need a thorough cleaning out after the sparrows have spent a few months as the occupants of the palatial quarters designed for the better of these little brown fellows that are with us the year round.

China must feel very certain of itself to sever relations with Germany and take possession of the ships of that nation now lying interned within its harbors. Possibly the diplomats of the Flowery Kingdom are awakening to the fact they represent a world power.

That hundred day session of the legislature is lengthening out into a spring and summer campaign, evidently, and the farmer members who hoped to get home for spring plowing, will have to be in a hurry or they will even miss the harvest season.

The only trouble with that Mexican and Japanese plot apparently is that they were found out too quickly. If they could have been carried out to a successful issue it would have been a master stroke of diplomacy, and not an error of judgment.

It is pointed out that that $40,500,000 in gold bars that J. P. Morgan imported would be nearly half a dollar apiece should he decide to dispose of it by a general distribution. Our chance at a share is hereby offered for about one millionth of a mill.

Soon we will have the "baseballists" with us again. Janesville may be in a league this year that plays once a week and on holidays, and perhaps the old-time reputation of the Murnals of bygone days will be revived.

This dry epidemic is going the rounds this spring and many a city and village is going to take a vote on the question that is one of the all-absorbing topics of discussion in almost every home and club meeting these days.

Hated Albion has evidenced a desire to investigate the Kaiser's defenses back of his present lines and has found beyond the pits and crater holes a wonderful, beautiful country.

It is still permitted to speak the English language in congress without asking permission of any European king.

SOUTHERN TOURIST'S HOME ENTERED; LOSS THOUGHT TO BE SMALL

Residence of Mrs. F. F. Stevens, St. Lawrence Avenue, Looted Since Holiday Season.

Picking out the only window not guarded by a storm window and a safety catch, thieves some time between the week of the Christmas days and today burglarized their way into the home of Mrs. F. F. Stevens, 120 St. Lawrence avenue, who is spending the winter in the south, but who was not recovered but little the loss was secured by the thieves. The offense was discovered this morning and was reported to the police immediately.

Officer William E. Gower investigated and found little evidence of the house being ransacked, as was the case in the Lawson and Jones residence. This is perplexing. It is not known whether to believe the burglars were experts and were seeking silverware and valuables, or that the job was done by amateurs and that they were scared away.

The caretaker who has had charge of the residence for five seasons, said it was most likely that she had placed the silverware and valuables in a safety deposit vault, but George A. Key, Mrs. Stevens' son, said that the safe was not correct, and seemed to believe that the lady had secreted them in some secure place. Miss Stevens is at Black, Miss, but expects to be in Chicago about the first of April. It was her plan to spend a month or five weeks there before returning to Janesville for the summer.

Entrance to the residence was gained at the rear, a small pane of glass being dug out and the old fashioned spring catch pulled back from the side of the frame and the window lifted. On the table in this room, the kitchen, were found a woodturner's half oval chisel and a monkey wrench. One door leading from the kitchen had been jammed open. Another, that leading into the dining room, had been locked but from all appearances the room entered it appeared that the burglar dashed against it and broke the casing and got pocket from the wall, permitting the door to swing from a large and heavy splinter of wood had been forced out, and from the condition of the door it was apparent that the tools had not been employed to open this door.

A number of keys must have been readily discovered, as desks and locked doors were found open, keys inserted. It is possible that the burglar made a dash through the front door. It is fastened with a catch lock.

Until Mrs. Stevens returns it will not be known whether or not there has been any loss. Mr. McKee planned to telephone this afternoon to her son, who resides in Chicago.

CAPABLE CAST IN VERY CLEVER COMEDY

Parish Priest Staged by Members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and Members of the Auxiliary.

Every comedy must have a bit of pathos in its lines to make it a success and no Irish play is successful unless there is a villain portrayed who at the proper moment turns from the evil path to the right one and of course there must be a love plot or it would all fail. Ambition versus honor was the lesson taught in the comedy of the "Parish Priest" staged by the members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Ladies' Auxiliary of that order Sunday afternoon and evening at the Myers theatre.

It is a play that made the late Daniel Sullivan famous and the latest production in no way diminished the fame of the old story of the struggle between love and honor on one side and ambition and riches on the other. There was just enough humor and pathos to make the play a success and the audience in tears and again roaring with laughter, to satisfy all.

Mary Flannigan, as Helen Durkin, proved herself a most capable actress and her lines, difficult at best, gave her a vast opportunity for range of expression and she did not fail to make the most of them. Her audience followed her story and wept with her at the climax of the scene, where she tells of her faithless lover, Dr. Welsh, who had not only failed to take her to the altar but had taken her to the altar and then deserted her. As one of the audience stated openly, "Wish that brother of his," portrayed by John P. McCue, would take a good woman like Mary Flannigan and make her his wife.

McCue proved most acceptable as Dr. Welsh. He was the scoundrel of the piece, and he was handled him so he could make a perfect fool of himself. He was portrayed by Miss Mamie McKewan, as daintily a bit of femininity has graced the comedy stage for a long time. The daughter of William Cassidy—Win. B. Sullivan—who turned his practice over to Dr. Welsh, fresh from medical school, was ambition versus love, love versus honor, and the end was not until Rev. John Whalen, the parish priest, whose part was ably taken by Dr. McGuire, had explained many questions to the spirit of the play and the audience was left with a man of affairs, and Lloyd Branks as Frank Douglas, an attorney, were excellent, and Miss Mary Kelley, as Katherine McGowan, a visitor from Ireland, was most delightful.

The cast showed wonderful stage presence and the careful drilling in expression and line by Miss Fitzgerald, who had been with them for some time, was really a wonderful production and worthy of the two crowded houses that greeted it. Unfortunately many were unable to attend and it was regretted that it was not the most critical consideration of lovers of the dramatic art and the comedy stage.

Notice is hereby given that the primary election for the combination of town officers for the Town of Port will be held at the Wilder school house at two p. m. March 24, by order of the committee in charge.

C. W. HOAGUE, town clerk.

Notice is hereby given to qualified electors of the Town of Magnolia that a caucus will be held in Dougherty's hall, Friday, March 23, 1917, for the purpose of making nominations for the respective town officers. By order of the caucus committee. Grant Howard, town clerk.

Mrs. Marion Peterson, Mrs. John Decker, Mrs. Fred Decker and Mrs. Barlett Smith of this city, all went to Clinton on Saturday to attend a large dinner party given at the home of Mrs. Frank Reiter. The dinner was served at six o'clock, covers being laid for thirty. Bridge whist was played in the evening.

The Congregational twenty club met this morning with Mrs. George V. Bresse of 911 Milwaukee avenue. The ladies all brought their sewing and a few social hours were enjoyed at half after five. A dinner was served. This club meets about once a month.

St. Margaret's Guild of Trinity church will hold an all day session at the home of Mrs. Herbert Allen of Jackson street on Tuesday, March 20. A picnic luncheon will be served.

Miss Florence McKewan of West day evening at St. Patrick's party. The green and white decorations were used, including the shamrock, and the little green flags. The evening was a most successful one. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Decker, Mr. and Mrs. Mabel Hill, and Messrs. Norman Little, Andrew Breikreutez and Simpson Carroll.

The drama club will meet this evening with Mrs. Mary Stevens of 456 Pearl street.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pollock of Milton avenue entertained about thirty guests at a dinner at home on Saturday evening, which was served at half after six. The guests surprised Mr. and Mrs. Pollock by all coming dressed in St. Patrick's costume.

The St. Patrick decorations were used in the rooms and on the tables. After dinner the game of five hundred was played. The high score was made by Mrs. Martin Morse and H. C. Proctor.

Members of the athletic association and basketball enthusiasts in Janesville are outgiving a schedule which will give the teams as much time for practice as possible. The faculty are also holding councils of war with a view to putting on the floor a team that will reflect greater honor.

There follows a list of the captains and coaches of the class teams so far as selected:

Sub-freshmen: Coach, Kenning. Freshmen: Coach, Werrill; captain, Fomoro; Coach, Phillip; captain, McDermott.

Knocks Teeth Out. Howard Hall, who knocked two of his front teeth out in a fall during the game between the Methodists and the St. Mary's team for the championship of the church league last Friday evening, suffered no other injuries and will be back in school shortly.

Hall slipped on a wet spot on the floor and fell with his full weight upon his face. It was thought that he had broken his jaw, but an X-ray showed that the only injury other than bruising and a severe shaking up, was the breaking of his teeth.

Fort Atkinson, March 19.—The annual banquet and business meeting of the Fort Atkinson Business Men's association was held Saturday evening in the Black Hawk Tavern.

The reports showed the past year to have been the best in the history of the association. John Westphal was re-elected president. The suggestion was made that the picnic this year be held in connection with the chautauque if possible. A committee will be appointed by the president to cooperate with the executive committee of chautauque in arranging for a real community week.

The question of providing a rest room for women taking the street car was discussed and made recommendations and suggestions to the association. It is possible that the business men's association will cooperate with the women's association in securing such a place for the use of the women who come to the Fort to do their trading.

Banker Is Buried. James C. Burtis, who conducted a bank at Cross Plains, Wis., was buried here today. He died very suddenly in a Madison hospital, after having made what seemed a good recovery from a long illness.

Mr. Bailey had many friends in Fort Atkinson, where he lived for a number of years. He leaves a widow, the daughter, Mrs. D. G. Burtis, and a son, Mr. Burtis, who is now in the home of Mrs. Ganong this afternoon and was largely attended by local friends, as well as a number from Cross Plains.

The service was held at the residence of Mrs. Grubel of the Congregational church.

India Worker Speaks. One of the most interesting addresses delivered before the Brotherhood was given last evening by Harry White on "Serving Men by the Millions in the Trenches."

Mr. White spoke for over an hour to a large audience, telling of the relief work being done on the various fronts by the International Y. M. C. A. Mr. White has had a wide experience in mission work in India, as well as having had opportunities to become acquainted with the association's work in China, Japan and the Philippines.

During the past year and a half he has served in the hospitals and prisons of Egypt, was connected with the relief work in the Gobi and the campaigns in the Balkans for the relief of the smaller nations suffering through war, compared with what the nations actually engaged in doing.

Fort Locals. The Winterburn drug store was recently sold to Fred Schlei of Columbus, Wis., who has already been in business in Winterburn. It is to remain here with the new proprietor while his brothers locate elsewhere.

CLASSES ORGANIZE BASKETBALL TEAMS FOR TITLE SERIES

Five Classes at Local High School to Put Teams in Running for Championship of School.

With but one game left in the Janesville High School basketball season, the brush with Madison High to be staged here next Friday night, athletic interest is turned toward the class basketball tournament which is to be pulled off next week. Already the various classes have organized and have chosen their team captains and coaches and are now preparing for a stiff ten days' practice before the tournament gets under way.

In the past this event has been the most popular of all the high school athletic contests and has enlisted on the class squads, from which the members of the faculty are also picked, a large number of pupils. The rivalry has been intense and the victors have won only after the hardest kind of struggles.

Last year the Freshmen came out on top, and according to members of this team, who are now Sophomores, the honor of the class of 1920 will be upheld in another victory. In addition to the four class teams which have participated heretofore, there are two more classes which are planning to enter the tournament.

The sub-freshmen, who will be represented by a team in the tournament, are also planning to enter the tournament. The faculty are also holding councils of war with a view to putting on the floor a team that will reflect greater honor.

MAXFIELD CAPABLE OF GOOD TESTIMONY IN AUTO SMASH CASE

As It Happens His Car Was Injured in the Worst—Settlement Falls—The Battle is On.

Leaving all tips to the hot polio emitting from the Janesville municipal court aside, here's one for local autoists.

Don't run into the judge. E. G. Owen, the lightning rod man did, and now he faces a complete bodying enough points to overshadow a return from a Chicago grand jury investigating police graft.

This morning he was arrested and brought before Judge Maxfield and pleaded not guilty to the charges. In brief they entail:

(1) Driving and operating carelessly an automobile.

(2) Driving and operating carelessly an automobile at a rate better than ten miles per hour within a distance of 150 feet from another automobile.

(3) Driving and operating carelessly an automobile and passing within four feet of another automobile at a speed over ten miles per hour.

Mr. Owen pleaded not guilty. His trial by court was set for a week from today. He was released in the custody of Chief of Police P. D. Champion.

The trouble all arose when Owen's car collided with that of the judge in front of the Service garage. The judge told about his story he had his machine in for repairs and upon finding the work completed requested a garage employee to run it out of the building and across the sidewalk to the street. This was done. Then the judge climbed in and prepared to start off.

Before he did this, he says, Owen came along and bumped him, entailing considerable damage to the court master's machine.

The judge claims Owen at fault, and made a damaging statement. He failed to reach a settlement in a hotly worded argument, Saturday, and this morning Chief Champion made the complaint.

Being deeply interested in the case it is expected that Judge Maxfield will call in a substitute to decide the case, which may not be settled and again, which may not be. It is also possible that a jury will decide the question.

WILD GOOSE CHASES BRING THREE FINES

Joseph Carter, Monroe, Tells Judge Maxfield About His Hunt As Like-wise Two Other Strangers.

Joseph Carter, aged thirty-three, of Monroe, a farmer and somewhat of a humorist, started on a "wild goose" chase yesterday. He, in some manner, had the idea the fowls were plentiful here. Joe failed to find geese before he shot at them, and instead of either stupefying the birds with his bottle of ammunition or putting salt on their tails, he awoke this morning with the

MYERS THEATRE.

"Daddy Long Legs" Was Born in Chicago.

Three years ago Jean Webster's beautiful comedy of "Daddy Long Legs" was first produced in Chicago at the Powers theatre. The play became immediately popular—so popular, in fact, that it remained right in the Powers theatre for more than eight months. During that period many people from Janesville witnessed it, and they and many others of this community will read the announcement that Manager Bransky of the Myers theatre is bringing Henry Miller's company here for one performance of the pretty comedy, which will occur in that house on the evening of Thursday, March 22d.

After the initial engagement of "Daddy Long Legs" in Chicago, it went to the Gaiety theatre, New York, where it ran for a year.

Up to the present time more than two million people in this country and in England have witnessed the play. President Wilson read the story of Daddy Long Legs, and then a year ago in Washington, he saw the play. He immediately wrote a note to the author stating that he considered the play even more delightful than the book. Henry Miller, the producer and manager of "Daddy Long Legs," sent a second company to London, England, last June for an indefinite engagement. It is still playing the comedy at the Duke of York's theatre in packed houses. "Daddy Long Legs" is a masterful blending of humor and pathos, has a direct appeal to all classes of people, and a joyously happy ending. Don't fail to witness this story of the poor little girl whose dreams came true.

MYERS THEATRE.

"The Garden of Allah." No play in recent years has taken so daringly audacious a theme as "The Garden of Allah," coming to Myers theatre on Saturday, March 24, for a limited engagement of matinee and night. The theme is of such infinite beauty and Oriental splendor that it will remain in the hearts and memory of all who see it for many days to come. "The Garden of Allah" was dramatized by Robert F. Hichens, who also wrote the book on the same title, and was assisted by Mary Anderson de Navarro.

The underlying charm of this novel and spectacular drama is the very naturalness of it all—to portray a man and a woman, who, having found such infinite delight in their marriage, can lay aside their worldly happiness that the man may return to his monastery. William Jeffrey as "Boris," the young Trappist monk, who finds love but not peace and contentment of soul outside the monastery, gives to the atmosphere of the role so delicate a charm, that one will find the heart-strings tightening as he gazes upon the wistful, kindly face, and follow him through his trying moments. And Sarah Truax as "Annie," the woman who also finds love in the great Sahara desert, but who, in her great love for truth and right, gives back this love, brings to her exacting role a burning personality and a low vibrating speaking voice—a sweetness and reverence that wins the heart. Others in the cast include Howard Gould, Thaddeus Gray, James Mason, Albert Andrus, Leo de Valery, Pearl Gray and the Abbott family of five, together with one hundred others required for the presentation of this spectacular drama, and it will be exactly as presented for one year at the Century theatre, New York City.

News Notes From Movieland

By DAISY DEAN.

Winifred Westover, the seventeen-year-old leading woman who registered a decided hit with Wilfred Lucas in "Jim Brudso," recently celebrated the first anniversary of her entry into the pictures. Miss Westover is the daughter of Clyde Westover, a well known news paper and magazine writer of San Francisco and president of the San Francisco Press club. Just about a year ago she left home and high school to seek her fortune as a child loid celebrity and was fortunate enough to secure an immediate engagement with a company in Los Angeles.

Within a few months Miss Westover became a featured player with De Wolf Hopper, Douglas Fairbanks and Will Rogers. She is a golden blond of the type that screens exceptionally well, and has shown unusual adaptability to the different parts in which she has been cast, being equally successful as a belle of the early sixties, as a character comedienne and as a modern social parasite, commonly called a "vamp." In the latter role, Miss Westover is said to be a distinct innovation, all previous home-wreckers being of a darker and more sinister style of beauty.

Winifred Westover has a prominent part in "Cheerful Givers," the new Bessie Love vehicle, now in course of production. It is predicted that she will soon develop into a real box office attraction.

PATRIOTISM. Ethel Clayton has notified the women's department of the Home League in New York City that she is ready to serve her country at whatever task they desire in the event of the United States requiring the assistance of women should war be declared with any country. "While I am not a suffragist," said Miss Clayton, "I feel that women should do their share when their country needs help, and for one will sacrifice my screen work if I can be more valuable to my country."

Eddie Peters, one of the most promising juvenile leads, has won further honors. Last week, he became the proud father of a baby girl. Kathleen Clifford remembered it with a very handsome bracelet, engraved with the words "Welcome Little Lady," and many other gifts were showered on it. The following day, Papa Peters was cast to play the part of a twelve-year-old boy and he "got away with it."

Betty Compton was bewailing the fact that none of her recent parts have called for evening dresses. "How late in the evening do you mean?" asked Eddie Barry, the irrepressible. "Strikes me some of those costumes you wear in 'Hubby's Night Out' might be called the very latest style in the evening."

CHAPTER XVII.

A Warning.

A few days after she had written to Judge Ellsworth Alaire following her letter in person, for having at last decided to divorce Ed, she acted with characteristic decision. Since Ellsworth had more than once advised this very course, she went to Brownsville, enlisting his willing support. She had written Dave Law, telling him that she intended to go to La Ferla, there to remain pending the hearing of her suit. To be sure, she would have preferred some place of refuge other than La Ferla, but she reasoned that there she would at least be undisturbed, and that Ed, even if he wished to effect a reconciliation, would not dare to follow her, since he was persona non grata in federal Mexico.

She had counted upon seeing Dave during her stay in Brownsville, and her failure to do so was a grave disappointment as she knew that he was in town attending court. Yet she told herself that it was brave of him to obey her injunctions so literally and to leave her unharassed by his presence at this particular time. It inspired her to be equally brave and to wait patiently for the day when she could welcome him with clean hands and a soul unshamed.

In the midst of Alaire's uncertainty of mind it gratified her to realize that Dave alone would know of her whereabouts. She wondered if he would come to see her. He was a reckless, headstrong lover, and his desires were all too likely to overcome his deliberate resolves. She rather hoped that in spite of his promise he would venture to cross the border so that she could see and be near him, if only for a day or for an hour. The possibility frightened and yet pleased her. The conventional woman within her frowned, but her outlaw heart beat fast at the thought.

Alaire did not explain her plans even to Dolores, but when her preparations were complete she took the Mexican woman with her, and during Ed's absence slipped away from the ranch. Boarding the train at Jonesville, she was in Pueblo that night.

It seemed at last that war with Mexico was imminent. After months of uncertainty the question had come to issue, and that lowering cloud which had hung above the horizon took ominous shape and size. Ellsworth awoke one morning to learn that an ultimatum had gone forth to President Potassi; that the Atlantic fleet had been ordered south; and that marines were being rushed aboard transports pending a general army mobilization. It looked as if the United States had finally risen in wrath, and as if nothing less than a miracle could now avert the long-expected conflict.

Blaze Jones took the San Antonio paper out upon the porch and composed himself in the hammock to read the latest war news. Invasion! Troops! The Stars and Stripes! Those were words that stirred Jones deeply and caused him to neglect his work. Now that his country had fully awakened to the necessity of a war with Mexico—a necessity he had long felt—he was fired with the loftiest patriotism and a youthful eagerness to enlist. Blaze realized that he was old and fat and near-sighted; but what of that? He could fight. Fighting, in fact, had been one of his earliest accomplishments, and he prided himself upon knowing as much about it as any man could learn. He believed in fighting both as a principle and as an exercise; in fact, he attributed his good health to his various neighborly "unpleasantnesses," and he had more than once argued that no great fighter ever died of a sluggish liver or of any one of the other ills that beset sedentary, peace-loving people. Nations were like men—too much ease made them flabby. And Blaze had his own ideas of strategy, too. So during the perusal of his paper he bemoaned the mistakes his government was making. Why waste time with ultimatums? He argued to himself. He had never done so. Experience had taught him that the way to win a battle was to beat the other fellow to the draw; hence this diplomatic procrastination filled him with impatience. It seemed almost treasonable to one of Blaze's intense patriotism.

He was engaged in laying out a plan of campaign for the United States when he became conscious of voices behind him, and realized that for some time Paloma had been entertaining a caller in the front room. Their conversation had not disturbed him at first, but now an occasional word or sentence forced its meaning through his preoccupation, and he found himself listening.

Paloma's visitor was a woman, and as Blaze listened to her voice, he felt his heart sink. It was Mrs. Strange. She was here again. With difficulty Blaze conquered an impulse to flee, for she was recounting a story all too familiar to him.

"Why, it seemed as if the whole city of Galveston was there, and yet nobody offered to help us," the dressmaker was saying. "Phil was a perfect hero, for the ruffian was twice his size. Oh, it was an awful fight! I hate to think of it."

"What made him pinch you?" Paloma inquired.

"Heaven only knows. Some men are dreadful that way. Why, he left a black-and-blue mark!"

Blaze broke into a cold sweat and cursed feebly under his breath.

"He wasn't drunk, either. He was just naturally depraved. You could see it in his face."

"How did you escape?"

"Well, I'll tell you. We chased him up across the boulevard and in among the tents, and then—"

Mrs. Strange lowered her voice until only a murmur reached the listening man. A moment, then both women burst into shrill, excited laughter, and Blaze himself blushed furiously.

This was unbearable! It was bad enough to have that woman in Jonesville, a constant menace to his good name, but to allow her access to his own home was unthinkable. Sooner or later they were bound to meet, and then Paloma would learn the disgraceful truth—yes, and the whole neighborhood would likewise know his shame. In fancy, Blaze saw his reputation torn to shreds and himself exposed to the gibes of the people who venerated him. He would become a scandal among men, an offense to respectable women; children would shun him. Blaze could not bear to think of the consequences, for he was very fond of the women and children of Jonesville. He rose from his hammock and tiptoed down the porch into the kitchen, from which point of security he called loudly for his daughter.

Alarmed at his tone, Paloma came running. "What is the matter?" she asked, quickly.

"Get her out!" Blaze cried, savagely. "Get shed of her."

"Her? Who?"

"That varmint."

"Father, what alls you?"

"Nothin' alls me, but I don't want that caterpillar crawl'n' around my premises. I don't like her."

Paloma regarded her parent curiously. "How do you know you don't like her when you've never seen her?"

"Oh, I've seen her, all I want to; and I heard her talkin' to you just now. I won't stand for nobody tellin' you—bad stories."

Paloma snickered. "The idea! She doesn't—"

"Get her out, and keep her out!" Blaze rumbled. "She ain't right; she ain't human. Why, what'd you reckon I saw her do, the other day? Makes me shiver now. You remember that big bull-snake that lives under the barn, the one I've been layin' for? Well, you won't believe me, but him and her are friends. Fact! I saw her pick him up and play with him. Who-ee! The goose-flesh popped out on me till I busted the buttons of my vest. She ain't my kind of people, Paloma. Strange! ain't no name for her, no, sir! That woman's dam' new peculiar."

Paloma remained unmoved. "I thought you knew. She used to be a snake-charmer."

"A-what?" There was no doubt about it. Blaze's hair lifted. He blinked through his big spectacles; he pawed the air freely with his hands. "How can you let her touch you? I couldn't. I'll bet she carries a pocketful of dried toads and—"

Blaze stopped. He knew an old voodoo woman that ate cockroaches. Get shed of her, Paloma, and we'll fumigate the house."

At that moment Mrs. Strange herself opened the kitchen door to inquire, "Is anything wrong?" Misreading Blaze's expression for one of pain, she exclaimed: "Mercy! Now, what have you done to yourself?"

But the object of her solicitude backed away, making peculiar clucking sounds deep in his throat. Paloma was saying:

"This is my father, Mrs. Strange. You and he have never happened to meet before."

"Why, yes we have! I know you," the seamstress exclaimed. Then a puzzled light flickered in her black eyes. "Seems to me we've met somewhere, but—I've met so many people." She extended her hand, and Blaze took it as if expecting to find it cold and scaly. He muttered something unintelligible. "I've been dying to see you," she told him, "and thank you for giving me Paloma's work. I love you both for it."

Blaze was immensely relieved that this dreaded crisis had come and gone; but wishing to make assurance doubly sure, he contorted his features into a smile the like of which his daughter had never seen, and in a disguised voice inquired, "Now where do you reckon you ever saw me?"

The seamstress shook her head. "I don't know, but I'll place you before long. Anyhow, I'm glad you aren't hurt. From the way you called Paloma I thought you were. I'm handy around sick people, so I—"

"Listen!" Paloma interrupted. "There's someone at the front door." She left the room; Blaze was edging after her when he heard her utter a stifled scream and call his name.

Now Paloma was not the kind of girl to scream without cause, and her cry brought Blaze to the front of the house at a run. But what he saw there reassured him momentarily; nothing was in sight more alarming than one of the depot hacks, in the rear seat of which was huddled the figure of a man. Paloma was flying down the walk toward the gate, and Phil Strange was awaiting on the porch. As Blaze flung himself into view the latter exclaimed:

"I brought him straight here, Mr. Jones, 'cause I knew you was his best friend."

"Who? Who is it?"

"Dave Law. He must have come in on the noon train. Anyhow, I found him—like that." The two men hurried toward the road, side by side.

"What's wrong with him?" Blaze demanded.

"I don't know. He's queer—he's off his bean. I've had a hard time with him."

Paloma was in the carriage at Dave's side now, and calling his name; but Law, it seemed, was scarcely conscious. He had slumped together; his face was vacant, his eyes dull. He was muttering to himself a queer, delicious jumble of words.

"Oh, dad! He's sick—sick," Paloma sobbed. "Dave, don't you know us? You're home, Dave. Everything is—all right now."

"Why, you'd hardly recognize the boy!" Blaze exclaimed; then he added his appeal to his daughter's. But they could not arouse the sick man from his coma.

"He asked me to take him to Las Palmas," Strange explained. "Looks to me like a sunstroke."

Paloma turned an agonized face to her father. "Get a doctor, quick," she implored; "he frightens me."

Dinner Stories

Miss Helen, the daughter of the family in which Jet-black Maria Jackson occasionally worked by the day, had been given a beautiful cup and saucer of rare china. She showed it to Maria and said:

"I mean to put it away in my hope box. You know what that is, Aunt Maria? It's the box a girl puts things into in the hope that she will some day need them as a bride."

"Lawdy, child, I know all about dem hope boxes. I got one of my own, chile."

"Why, I thought you were already married."

"I is, chile, an' my hope box is one I puttin' money into fas' as I kin until I has enough to pay fo' a divorcement from Pete Jackson. More'n one kind of hope box is mixed up with matrimony, Miss Helen."

Jimmy had not come up to his father's expectations in regard to his studies at school and an explanation was demanded.

"Why is it," inquired the irate parent, "that you are at the bottom of the class?"

"I can't see that it makes any difference whether I am at the top or the bottom," replied Jimmy peacefully. "You know they teach just the same at both ends."

The flower seller and Mr. Karker engaged in conversation.

"Buy a flower, sir?"

"No, thanks."

"Buy one for your wife."

"Haven't got one."

"For your sweetheart, then."

"Haven't got one."

"Well, buy one to celebrate your good luck."

He bought.

NO INDIANAPOLIS CLASSIC NEXT MEMORIAL DAY IF COUNTRY IS AT WAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Indianapolis, March 19.—There will be no 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on next Memorial day if, in the meantime, the United States should declare war, according to James R. Allison, secretary-treasurer of the local track and chairman of the executive board of the American Speedway association.

"If the time for this country to enter the war should ever come," Mr. Allison said, "everything under my jurisdiction will be placed at the disposal of the government. Besides, I would not want to be engaged in a sport that would consume materials, such as rubber and steel, that the government could use."

Will pay for the chance to heal Catarrh

After an experience of 25 years during which time 50 million Americans have used Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly, the manufacturers of this remedy feel so sure that it will relieve catarrh—that they offer to pay for a chance to prove its benefit to any catarrhal sufferer. They announce that any resident of this community can go to almost any drug store and get a complimentary trial can at the expense of the manufacturers. If the druggist has no gratuitous packages, the person may buy a 25 cent tube with the unconditional understanding that if that first tube does not do that person more than a dollar's worth of good, he or she can get their quarter back from either the druggist, or the Kondon Company at Minneapolis. Over 35,000 druggists know Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly is effective, harmless, clean and pleasant to apply—and they know the Kondon people will gladly live up to this offer—"quarter back if not worth a dollar." If Prohibition is Desired Let Justice Come With It

THIS article and others that have preceded it are not written from an anti-prohibition standpoint. Their purpose is to discuss the question of justice in disposing of an issue.

The will of the people must decide for or against prohibition; those who are affected by that decision must abide by it. If the people want prohibition they should be willing to offset any loss caused by their vote.

It is unfair and unjust to render useless that which has cost millions to build up. If public opinion changes, the burden caused thereby should be borne by all—not by a few.

Leaders of public opinion recognize the fairness and justice of compensation. For instance, Senator Owen of Oklahoma, a national prohibition leader, during a recent discussion in the United States Senate, said:

"I should be perfectly willing to agree to compensate those men for the property which would be destroyed. I think it is better to adjust it upon such lines than to have the struggle proceed in so fierce a fashion and continued so long by those who are fearful of this great loss of property. Paying for the breweries, paying for the liquor interest and buying it out, would be better for the Republic, just as it would have been better for this Nation if the people of the Nation had agreed to settle black slavery by paying the price of the slaves and freeing them on that basis."

If prohibition is desired, then let justice come with it.

Those who are engaged in a business fostered by the government and heavily taxed for the benefit of the government, for the state and for each community wherever it prevails, should not have their income destroyed and their property values slaughtered by a vote of the people without compensation.

TAKE SWINDLER WHO ESCAPED EDGERTON POLICE IN INDIANA

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, March 15.—V. L. Lawrence, who escaped from the custody of officers at the Carlton Hotel at supper time on January 21, 1917, and was traced by the Edgerton officers to Port Arkison, Whitewater, Ind., in Sullivan, Indiana, was arrested in Sullivan, Ind., last week and is now being held at the jail on the same warrant as the one upon which he was arrested in Edgerton. The charge in the warrant being that Lawrence operated a confidence game. Lawrence obtained notes which were not payable or to be sold until he had completed the operation of a mausoleum. Each note was for $100, and would represent one share of stock in the mausoleum. His game was to discount the notes that he could get in that town. Of course, the mausoleum was never erected and the signers of the notes were out their $100. He operated largely among doctors and undertakers.

Lawrence was working the same game when arrested in Sullivan, Ind., only he had changed companies. He formerly was supposed to represent the Abbey Association of Whitewater, Ind., and he now appears to be with the Westminster Abbey Association of Chicago, Ill. There does not appear to be an Abbey association in existence at either Whitewater or Chicago, and the same is probably true of the South Dakota concern.

There are a number of cities now holding warrants for Mr. Lawrence, so that he is liable to be kept pretty busy for some time to come if the cities are fortunate enough to find their attorney's office.

It is to be regretted that Duke Kahanamoku did not compete in the 100-yard mid-Pacific carnival championship. Although Perry McGilivray won the event, his sole object in taking the trip was to meet the Duke on his own stamping grounds.

The latest word from Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis light-weight, who recently took his announced departure from New York, automatically canceling his scheduled bout with Jim Flynn, is to the effect that the Hoosier boxer has accepted terms for a twenty-round bout with Les Darcy of Australia, to be held in Denver the latter part of this month or early in April. The purse is said to be $20,000 which the boxers can divide to their own liking.

RESUME OF MATTERS BEFORE LEGISLATURE DURING PAST WEEK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., March 19.—Indications point to the crushing of the proposed resolution, criticizing Senator La Follette for his filibuster against the amended neutrality bill in congress when it comes up in the Wisconsin senate as a special order on Wednesday, Thursday, Senator J. Henry Dyer, at the short hearing before the senate committee on education and public welfare, was the only supporter of the resolution, while several La Follette followers counsel moderation, declaring belief in the sincerity of La Follette in his stand. Several petitions have been received endorsing the senator's action.

The senate committee on corporations is giving considerable thought to a bill proposed by Emmett Hicks, of Oshkosh, former attorney general, to cancel bonds issued by any municipality in Wisconsin. Opponents of the bill declared that the measure in effect made the attorney general a censor for the entire public, and that if the work was done, it would produce a large corps of attorneys.

Highway Measure.
The new highway bill, which is ready for presentation, will provide revenue estimated to total $1,500,000 annually from increased taxes on automobiles. Of this amount 75 percent will go to the state and 25 percent to the counties to be used in the improvement of highways. The measure is the product of a joint committee in conjunction with the highway committee and is expected to be passed by the legislature.

The legislative interests of northern Wisconsin will, it is expected, be looked after by a subcommittee of three senators and four assemblymen provided for in a bill introduced by Senator Wilkinson. The committee would have power to fire into the needs of northern Wisconsin, especially as to the development of cut-over land for agricultural purposes.

Woman's Suffrage. After canvassing the legislature, professing to believe that the woman's suffrage measure providing for a referendum, will pass. They are counting upon nine votes in the senate and fifty-three in the assembly, a small majority in each body. Another woman's suffrage measure, offered by Senator Reinhold, aims to place the question up to the women of the state to be voted upon in November, 1918.

The Lytle bill for a state-wide prohibition referendum, finally has come out of committee with a vote, 4 to 2, for indefinite postponement. This bill has been calendared as a special order for next Thursday afternoon. The supporters of the measure do not seem to be discouraged at the report of the committee and will make a strong fight for it on the floor of the lower house.

A bill introduced by Assemblyman C. W. Lofthus providing for the pensioning of civil service employees in Milwaukee after twenty-five years' service was given unanimous recommendation by the committee on the measure. It is expected to receive opposition when it comes up for action.

That the legislature may adjourn by June 1 is the belief of many who have canvassed the situation. It is thought that hearings on bills in both houses can be finished by the middle of April, and in that event leaders in both houses believe that the work of the session can be completed by the end of May.

To Retain Primary.
A canvass of members of the legislature indicates that the measure for the repeal of the primary election law will fail of passage. It may possibly go through the assembly, but it is likely to fail of passage by the senate. There is some talk that a substitute bill will be introduced providing for a state convention for the nomination of state officers, the delegates to which shall be chosen in the primary election.

Among the bills passed was one prohibiting fraternities and sororities in Milwaukee high schools and several appropriation measures. Others advanced or engrossed include:

Repealing the law which permits the insurance on county, municipal and school buildings under the state fire law.
Permitting the city of Milwaukee to pass an ordinance which, when approved by the people, will allow the operation of grocery stores and meat shops on Sunday.

Repealing the state school for crippled children at Sparta to receive other defective children.

Requiring physicians to report to the state board of control all children found defective.

Making the minimum rate for teachers in country schools $45 a month.

Permitting the state to sell a municipal plant on a vote of the people.

For the closing of all saloons in rural districts between 11 p. m. and 6 a. m.

Placing two mile dry zones around the state hospital at Mendota and Northern Hospital at Oshkosh.

Bills Postponed.

Indefinite postponement was given a resolution for a constitutional amendment giving the state the right to acquire storage houses, warehouses and grain elevators; also the measure which had for its object the prevention of any member of the legislature accepting an appointment of a public office in Wisconsin during a legislative term.

RESOLUTION AIMED AT NORMAL LOBBYISTS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 19.—Assemblyman H. J. Grell of Johnson Creek, asking for the return of the money expended by the board of normal regents in appearing before the legislature upon legislation in 1915. This measure was brought out before the legislature in a debate in which Speaker Whittell charged that during the session of the legislature certain money expended by the board of normal regents to present facts against pending legislation. Assemblyman Grell immediately served notice on the house that he would introduce a resolution asking for the return of this money. He offered the following resolution:

"Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, that the attorney general be, and he is hereby, directed to institute proper actions or proceedings for and in behalf of the state to recover all sums of money illegally expended by the board of normal schools to any persons for salaries or compensation for services or for expenses incurred in appearing upon legislation before the legislature or any committee thereof during the year 1915."

This is the first action of this kind that has come before the legislature in recent years. It gives rise to the introduction of several bills in the legislature, one of which was offered by Assemblyman Vincent to compel all state officials and federal employees appearing before a committee of the legislature to register as a lobbyist.

Assemblyman Ohl has introduced a bill which will be of the greatest interest to all automobile owners. It provides that before any automobile shall be registered, the person making the application for such registration shall file with the secretary of state a bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with at least two sureties, who shall each justify and double the amount of the bond over and above their debts to be freeholders and shall be willing to pay all damages that may be incurred by any person against the automobile owner on account of any damage that the automobile may cause.

JAPS' NEW ATTITUDE TOWARDS CHINA MADE MATTER OF COMMENT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Peking, March 19.—Chinese newspapers are devoting much space to discussion of the apparent change in Japan's attitude towards China.

Of all parties and factions share the opinion that Japan has abandoned, at least temporarily, all thought of physical conquest of China, and is devoting itself to an economic conquest.

Japan's attitude towards the new American enterprises in China and the renewed efforts of Japanese bankers to entrench themselves more thoroughly through loans of various sorts are widely discussed in the Chinese press as well as in parliament.

The following statement from the Peking Daily News is representative of the view generally taken by the Chinese press: "At Tokio the belief prevails that Japan will continue her endeavor to increase her political influence in China. The Japanese business men are continually clamoring for a political ascendancy that will not be so abrupt as to endanger peace. What they desire is a thorough economic conquest of the neighboring republic."

"The readiness with which the Chinese recently granted American capitalists the concession to build a long railroad and their hesitation in making contracts with the Japanese have awakened the Japanese to the fact that ascendancy in China to be successful, must be accompanied by some measure of trust and confidence. The Japanese have tricked the Chinese so much that the Chinese have lost all confidence in their neighbors, both politically and commercially."

"The situation as it stands between the United States, China and Japan is in its infancy, but it is growing daily and will have to be taken into consideration soon."

Chinese papers throughout the republic show hostility to any financial arrangement in which Japan has a hand. There is a general disposition to discourage joint action between any group of foreign powers and China, if Japan be included in the group.

Chinese newspapers are practically unanimous in their expression of the hope that American bankers will invest large sums in the development of China without co-operation with foreign powers. The United States is heralded as the one country which has dealt fairly with China, and has no desire to acquire Chinese territory and exercise undue political pressure on China through financial channels.

LADY HAMILTON CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY IN FACTORY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, March 19.—Lady Mary Hamilton, daughter of the Duke of Abercorn, celebrated her twenty-first birthday by working all day in a munitions factory, just as she has been doing for more than a year. During this time she has had one lay off, due to a rather bad accident.

They say Lady Mary is more than average pretty, which likewise is true of Lady Iris Capell, daughter of the Earl of Essex, who began her war service as a nurse and is now a chauffeur. The latter's younger sister, Lady Joan is parlor maid in London.

derry House, a hospital for officers.

The roll of beauty-on-the-job also includes Yvonne Fitzroy, daughter of Sir Almeric Fitzroy, who has been nursing in the Balkans under severe conditions for many months. There are others, also.

There are two reasons why some people do not mind their own lousiness. One is because they haven't any lousiness; the other is because they haven't any mind.

Fencing Master, Soldier, Peels Spuds And Tells Wonder of the French, 75

FENCING MASTER—2 COL. TAAAL...
Editor's Note: Patrick Mac-gill, the Irish poet and fairy story writer, is a member of the London Irish regiment, whose two famous books, "The Red Horizon" and "The Great Push," doubtless are familiar to you.

London, March 18.—"Down tools," said the platoon sergeant and blew his whistle. The hour was noon and we had been working since dawn on the field by La Bassée road digging trenches. Across the road was an enemy mound, and accompanied by my mate Spudhole, I made my way to the place hoping that I could get something fancy.
The estimate was crowded and we made our way to a low rooted room at the rear and here we found two persons, a man and a woman. The woman was sweating over a stove frying cutlets; the man was sitting on a stool peeling potatoes into a large bucket. He was a thick set blimp of a fellow with long, hairy arms, dark heavy eyebrows, a snarl over a sharp nose, a small mouth and a long ear sticking from the butt of his left ear up to the eye almost. He wore a nondescript pair of loose, baggy trousers, a fragment of a shirt and a pair of bedroom slippers. He peeled the potatoes with a knife, a long, saw-like instrument which he handled with marvelous dexterity.

"Digging trenches?" he asked, hurling a potato into the bucket and splashing water all over us. I told him yes.
"But the Boche will never get as far as here unless as prisoners," said the man.
"They may thrust us back," I said.
"One never knows."
"Thrust us back! Never!" A potato was swept into the bucket with a whizz like a spent bullet. "Their day has come. Why? The big English guns and the many shells. And then there's the 75, the little love. The beautiful gun, one of the best. It's the very devil when it starts. Pip. Pip. Pip.
Four shells in the air one behind the other. Nothing can stand them. Bomb! One lands in the German trench. Run. Some go right, some go left. The second shot lands on the right, the third on the left and the fourth finishes the work. The dead are many. Other guns are good, but none so good as the 75."
"What about the gun that sent this ever?" As I spoke I pointed to the percussion cap of one of the gigantic shells with which the Germans raked
the way that time the enemy's enthusiasm for destruction had not the nice discrimination which permeates it now. The remnant on the mantelpiece, the remnant of a mammoth Krupp design, was cast off by a shell in the road opposite the door.

"A great gun, the one that sent that," said the Frenchman digging the clay from the eyes of a potato and looking at the percussion cap on the mantelpiece which lay beneath a picture of the Virgin and Child. "But compared to the 75 it is nothing. The big shell comes Boom! It is in no hurry. You hear it and you are in your dugout before it arrives. It is like the thunder which you hear and you are in shelter when the rain comes. But the 75 is lightning. It comes silently, quicker than its own sound."
"Do you work here?" I asked.
"I work here," said the potato peeler. "In the coal mine across there" I asked.
"Not in a coal mine," was the answer. "I peel potatoes."
"Always," said the man. "I am back now from ten days' leave from the trenches. First time since last summer. I just got back this morning."
"Oh," I ejaculated, "then you have seen some fighting?"
"Fighting," said the man. "Yes a little."
"In fact a great amount." His eyes lit up with fire and he sent a potato stripped clean of its jacket up to the roof, but with such precision that it dropped down again, straight into the bucket. "I was in it at the beginning when we went south and the Germans came across up north. It was turn about and up again like mad, perched on timbers, taxis, ambulance wagons, anything. We got into battle near Paris. The Boches came in clusters, they covered the ground like flies on the dead in summertime. The 75 came into work there. It was wonderful.

Pip. Pip. Pip. Pip. Men were cut down, wiped out in thousands. When the gun was no further good—guns had lives short and glorious then—a new one came into play and killed, killed until it could stand the strain
no longer."
"Much hand to hand fighting?" I asked.
"The bayonet? Yes." The potato peeler thrust his knife through a potato and slit it in two. "The Germans said 'Eugh. Eugh. Eugh. Eugh.' When we went for them like this." The potato peeler made several vicious prods at the imaginary enemy. "And we cut them down." He paused as if at a loss for words and sent his knife whirling into the air where it spun at an alarming rate. Spudhole and I edged our chairs nearer the door but the potato peeler standing suddenly upright caught the weapon by the haft
as it circled and bent to lift a fresh potato.
"What is that for?" I asked, pointing to a sword wreathed in a garland of flowers tattooed on the man's arm.
"The rapier," said the man. "I am a fencer, a master fencer. Fenced in Paris, Bordeaux, Marseilles, several places. The patronne, the man's wife, had been buzzing around like a bee, droning out in an almost incoherent voice as she served the customers and took their money from them. Now she came up to the fencing master, looked at him in the face for a second and then cast a hurried glance at the bucket. The sweat oozed from her face like water from a sponge.
"Hurry and get the work done," she said to her husband, and the master fencer bent meekly to his task. Then the woman turned to us.
"You are keeping him from his work," she stuttered, "you two chatter-ink like magpies. Allez-vous en!"

We ordered dinner then, but ate our meal in the next room.

STATE TO AID WITH BABY WEEK CAMPAIGN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 19.—State cooperation with the federal children's bureau in organizing this year's baby week campaign has already brought many requests for aid from organizations in many parts of Wisconsin. The campaign will be held the week of May 16. Special attention will be given this year to maternal care and the problems of children up to five and six years of age. These have been added because a baby's welfare cannot be separated from the welfare of its mother—in other words, the baby's health depends largely on the mother's health—and that children of three, four and five years present problems
as difficult as those of infancy.

The 1916 campaign was such an unqualified success, not only in Wisconconsin, but all over the Union, that leaders do not question the outcome in 1917. The baby week campaigns are organized to give the parents of a community the opportunity to learn the most important facts regarding the care of the baby and to bring home to the community a knowledge of the facts regarding the needless loss in child life each year from easily preventable causes.

The university extension division is sending out package libraries for baby week programs and is arranging lists of speakers and sets of lantern slides and films. The state board of health has a portable set of infant welfare charts which it will loan to any community where a baby week program is held, it also has a set of lantern slides for this work which it will loan upon request. The 1917 edition of the board's Baby Bulletin, soon to be issued, contains statistics on infant mortality and will be sent free in as large numbers as desired for local distribution.

The speaking bureau for the Wisconsin campaign will be under the direction of Prof. J. I. Child of the university extension division. The state board of health will supply as many speakers as possible free of charge.
The children's bureau at Washington issues a special bulletin concerning the organization of a baby week campaign which local organizations may obtain upon request.

In 1916 over 2,000 communities were covered over every state in the Union observed the first nation-wide baby week. Forty-seven of the fifty cities with more than 100,000 population and 700 villages and rural communities with less than 2,500 population had baby week.

FINAL SCORE 28 TO 27

Opponents Take Advantageous Position in First Five Minutes, But Are Beaten In Last Five.

[illegible]

The playing of Richards with Cards and Cushing with the Greys was wonderful. The former had been pitted against Edler and if Edler's play was characterized in his life by the dimension of a kid, it came to the varsity man like a lightning bolt. Edler soon realized that Richards was no bubble at basketball. He was stopped every time he attempted his famous dribble. "Here, got one basket over the lad, but that wasn't anything," as compared with what he has done in the past, even from the guard position.

and Mladen came back with one apiece. Krupp dropped in his first basket, and then he and Mladen were thrown in three trials. Krupp scored a point, a foul ball being called on him. He had four minutes to play at this time and the count was 11-11. Before half time Richards got into the other basket over the backboard and also counted a point. The count at the end of the half, 12-11, was in the players' rested.

A technical point arose here because Hamilton scored before the players were called from the floor. The referee was called and the time was up, but Hamilton's basket counted. The next foul was by the other team. The foulless scorer's Krupp had been fouled and Bennett had the only foul possible in the place. It was a matter of dispute, but the referee ruled in the encouragement we'll let them have another half. At half time, they didn't

FAVORS MICHIGAN'S RETURN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Indianapolis, Ind., March 19.—Two members of the Western Conference in Indiana—Indiana university and Purdue university—are heartily in favor of the return of the University of Michigan to the conference, provided, of course, the Wolverines live up to the conference rules.

Dispatches from the two schools said that it is the opinion of the st-dent leaders that the addition of Michigan to the conference would break up the "Big Four" and "Little Five" combinations and would help the smaller members of the conference in getting more important football dates.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the amateur boxing officials of Boston for the annual Boston A. A. championship boxing tournament, which will be held under the auspices of the Boston A. A. Mechanics Hall, Boston, on April 1 and 2. Championships at various weights in eight classes ranging from bantamweight to heavyweight are scheduled for decision.

"We will welcome the return of Michigan with open arms," Prof. Paige said. "But for the fact that our 1917 schedule is all filled the Wolverines would in all probability be pitted against the Gophers next fall." Coach Harry L. Williams said that he would like to see easily come out for spring practice and then continue practice through the vacation period. "If that plan is followed" Williams said, "the necessity of gradually rounding into condition would be done away with when the time for official practice

The boxing game is in a thriving condition now and more upsets have taken place since January 1 than during the entire 1916 season. The game is healthy and prosperous.

Fred Fulton, the ponderous plasterer from Minnesota, who has lived up to his trade with considerable vigor.

"Look here," he said. "There's champion who isn't, not by no means. He rants around the country showing the curious multitude how he knocked Jack Johnson stiff, and then he disappears and wears a lot of leather breeches and other things that remind me of the Indians of the Rio Grande, and gets away with it. He don't show 'em how he knocked out anybody since he and Johnson pulled off their little Havana meeting. And the reason is there ain't no other."

Fulton wants to fight. He's just reaching for a chance to get to Willard.

Looks like a chance for Jess to die the proper fistie death he has been waiting for, or make himself so solid with the public that he will never be dethroned in popular favor.

It is the inherited duty of a heavyweight championship to defend his title whenever a good man appears. The popularity of many of the old time bruisers lay in the fact that they willingly vaulted the rope soft a ring and hammered some opponent for a dozen or so rounds. There is just one
